

PhD Course work

There are four courses in Ph.D. course work: (i) Research Methodology & (ii) Research ethics, (iii) Special Course Related to the Core Area of Research, and (iv) Course on Specific Research Proposal. While the first two are common courses, the last two are specific to individual scholars and are developed by their respective Research Advisory Councils, considering the need of the research scholar and the field of research.

This programme prepares students to advance their knowledge and intellectual abilities; enhance Personal effectiveness; know the standards, requirements and professional conduct that are needed for the effective management of research; and to develop the skills needed to engage with, influence and impact on the academic, social, cultural, economic, and broader context.

Programme Outcome:

On completion of the programme, research students should have shown evidence of being able to:

1. demonstrate a thorough knowledge of the literature and a comprehensive understanding of methods and techniques applicable to their own research
2. discover, interpret, and communicate new knowledge through original research of publishable quality which satisfies peer review
3. apply a significant range of advanced and specialized skills and be able to act autonomously in the planning and implementation of research
4. practice a proactive, self-critical, and self-reflective approach based on research and develop professional relationships with others where appropriate
5. demonstrate leadership and originality in tackling and resolving problems and issues, through communication and working effectively with others
6. present and defend original research outcomes which extend the forefront of a discipline or relevant area of professional practice
7. critically and creatively evaluate current issues, research, and advanced scholarship in the discipline
8. manage complex ethical and professional issues and make informed judgements on ethical codes and practices, and
9. work collaboratively with all stakeholders to create, develop, and exchange research knowledge to influence and benefit society and the economy

CENTRAL UNIVERSITY OF KERALA
Department of English and Comparative Literature
Syllabus: PhD (English and Comparative Literature): 2019

Course Code	LEC7101	Credits	4
Course Title	RESEARCH METHODOLOGY	Semester	PhD (Coursework)

This course introduces research scholars to research, logical concerns, relevance of research design, ethical issues involved, importance of literature review, and methodological concerns.

Course Outcomes

By the end of the course, students will be able to:

1. understand the crucial role of methodology in research,
2. familiarize themselves with different kinds research methods and methodologies
3. understand the required tools and skills to employ a specific methodology
4. identify research areas and design research topics.
5. Identify and choose suitable methods and methodologies for the preparation of research framework
6. understand the mechanics of writing
7. write methodologically sound logically coherent research papers and thesis.

Unit 1: Introducing Research

- Research: definition-scope-meaning - characteristics - aims & objectives
- Area of research: genre - period - region - author - texts
- Types of research: disciplinary - intra- disciplinary - interdisciplinary – trans disciplinary
- Basic research - applied research - normal and revolutionary researches - quantitative and qualitative methods - other types of research

Unit 2: Beginning research

- Identification of a research topic
Choosing the topic - framing of topic-statement - Definition and formulation of a problem - methodology - research proposal - hypothesis - synopsis - abstract
- Resources
print resources: library - bibliography - MSS - books - journals - abstract - conference proceedings - etc.; Library, Internet; Other: audio-visual - interview - field study;
- Literature survey
Systematic approach: background study - review of literature; primary and secondary sources; review - review article - citation - peer review - refereed publication - plagiarism.
- Quantitative techniques & computer applications
Computer applications: MS-Word - MS Excel - MS PowerPoint internet resources,

Unit 3: Doing Research

- Mechanics
Spelling - Abbreviations - Punctuation - Quotations - Numbers - Format - Italics.
- Documentation:
In-text citations - bibliography - works cited - references;
Style (narration-argumentation-exposition-description) - paragraph structure; style manuals: MLA - Chicago style manual; print drafts - correction - submission.

- Language:
suitable diction-tone - jargon - slang - vague/concrete words.
- Presentation of research
Paragraph - topic statement - introduction - body - conclusion
Notes (tables - pictures etc.) works cited - abstract -
Plagiarism check; institutional policy; margin - spacing - heading and title - page numbers -
Correction and insertion - electronic submission;
- Key issues and arguments - literature /scholarship review - socio-cultural background.

Unit 4: Writing Research

- Art of writing a research paper and thesis
Research report
research paper vs. PhD thesis
Layout of a research report / PhD thesis
- Preliminary pages
main text (introduction - actual research work - conclusion) - end matters (appendices - references/bibliography) - typing the report
- Presentation for correction
First draft - second draft - third draft

CENTRAL UNIVERSITY OF KERALA
Department of English and Comparative Literature
Syllabus: PhD (English and Comparative Literature): 2019

Course Code	LEC7102	Credits	2
Course Title	RESEARCH AND PUBLICATION ETHICS	Semester	PhD (Coursework)

This course makes the research scholars aware about the publication ethics and publication misconducts. It has six units divided broadly into theory and practice. In the theory part, focus is given to the basics of philosophy and ethics, scientific conduct, and publication ethics. In the practical part attention is given to open access publishing, publication misconduct and database and research metrics. The course will comprise of classroom teaching, guest lectures, group discussions and practical sessions

Course Outcomes

The research scholars will be able to:

1. understand the philosophy and ethics of research
2. practice scientific conduct throughout the research
3. follow publication ethics
4. understand the avenues of publications including open access publishing.
5. utilize databases and research metrics

A. THEORY

RPE01: Philosophy and Ethics (3 hours)

1. Introduction to philosophy, definition, nature, scope, concept, branches
2. Ethics: definition, moral philosophy, nature of moral judgments and reactions

RPE02: Scientific Conduct (5 hours)

1. Ethics with respect to science and research
2. Intellectual honesty and research integrity
3. Scientific misconducts: Falsification, Fabrication, Plagiarism
4. Redundant Publications: duplicate and overlapping publications, salami slicing
5. Selective reporting and misrepresentation of data

RPE03: Publication Ethics (7 hours)

1. Publication ethics: definition, introduction, importance
2. Best practices / standards setting initiative and guidelines: COPE, WAME etc.
3. Conflicts of interests
4. Publication misconducts: definition, concept, problems that lead to unethical behavior
5. Violation of publication ethics, authorship and contributorship
6. Identification of publication misconduct, complaints and appeals
7. Predatory publishers and journals
8. PRACTICE

RPE04: Open Access Publishing (4 hours)

1. Open access publication and initiatives
2. SHERPA/RoMEO online resource to check publisher copyright and self-archiving policies
3. Software tool to identify predatory publications developed by SSPU
4. Journal finder / journal suggestion tools viz. JANE, Elsevier Journal Finder, Springer journal suggester etc.

RPE05: Publication Misconduct (4 hours)

A. Group Discussion (2 Hours)

1. Subject Specific Ethical issues, FFP, authorship
2. Conflicts of Interest

- 3. Complaints and Appeals
- B. Software tools (2 Hours)
 - 1. Use of Plagiarism software like Turnitin, Urkund, other opensource software

RPE06: Database and Research Metrics (7 hours)

- A. Databases (4 Hours)
 - 1. Indexing Databases
 - 2. Citation databases: Web of Science, Scopus etc.
- B. Research Metrics (3 Hours)
 - 1. Impact Factor of Journals as per Journal Citation Report, SNIP, SJR, IPP, Cite Score
 - 2. Metrics: H-index, G-index, i10 Index, altmetrics

CENTRAL UNIVERSITY OF KERALA
Department of English and Comparative Literature
Syllabus: PhD (English and Comparative Literature): 2019

Course Code	LEC7103	Credits	4
Course Title	SPECIAL COURSE RELATED TO THE CORE AREA OF RESEARCH	Semester	PhD (Coursework)
Student	Ms. Safwana Salam	Faculty	Dr. Asha S

This course seeks to acquaint the candidate with the seminal works of scholarship in the domains related to the core area of research such as Minority Studies, Gender Studies, Feminist Historiography, Anthropological/(Auto) Ethnographic Studies, Postcolonial and Post Secular Studies and the Islamic social and cultural historiography of Kerala with reference to the historiography of (North) Malabar. The course would exhaustively cover relevant foundational scholarship in the broad disciplines, apart from exploring recent enquiries in the domains concerning the core area of study of the researcher.

Course Outcome

By the end of the course, the research scholar shall be able to:

1. To explore how the Muslim subject position in India is a complex of discursive representations and lived experiences
2. To introduce foundational scholarship in Islamic gender studies and feminist historiography
3. To familiarize anthropological and auto ethnographic enquiries in relation to Islam and Muslim communities across the world
4. To develop an understanding of Muslim social and cultural history, tradition and practices, particularly in relation to the Mappila community of North Malabar

Course Structure

The course instructor will select 2 to 3 texts from each Module in the Semester for detailed study and for purposes of assessment. The remaining texts will be marked for recommended reading.

Module I: Minority Studies

The module offers an understanding of Minority Studies particularly with reference to the Muslim subjectivity in India and South Asia. Representations of Muslim subject position in mainstream discourses are also looked at critically through selections included in this module.

- Intiaz Ahmad and Helmut Reifeld. "Introduction" in Lived Islam in South Asia: Adaptation, Accommodation and Conflict pp. xi-xxv
- Shahid Amin- "Representing the Musalman: Then and Now, Now and Then" in Subaltern Studies XII: Muslims, Dalits, and the Fabrications of History
- M.T. Ansari- "Questions of Community" in Islam and Nationalism in India: South Indian Contexts pp. 55-70
- Lila Abu-Lughod "Local Contexts of Islamism in Popular Media"

Module II: Islamic Gender Studies & (Feminist) Historiography

The module would introduce the researcher to foundational texts in Islamic gender studies and (feminist) historiography which explore questions concerning the relationship between religion, gender and community identities and address the question of agency of the postcolonial feminist subject.

CENTRAL UNIVERSITY OF KERALA
Department of English and Comparative Literature
Syllabus: PhD (English and Comparative Literature): 2019

Course Code	LEC7104	Credits	6
Course Title	WOMEN AND ISLAM: A STUDY ON MATRILocal COMMUNITIES IN SELECT NARRATIVES (Course on Specific Research Proposal)	Semester	PhD (Coursework)
Student	Ms. Safwana Salam	Faculty	Dr. Asha S

This course intends to specifically look at the diverse representations of the matriloal and matrilineal practices of North Malabar. The first module seeks to introduce the candidate to advanced scholarship in Matriarchal and Matrilineal Studies. Representations of matriloal/matrilineal practices in oral narratives, archival records, literature and print media, visual narratives such as films, paintings and photographs etc. will constitute the major focus of the course. As more narratives are likely to come up in the course of the candidate's fieldwork, the list of narratives currently furnished in the syllabus is tentative. The course would also equip the candidate to make a comparative analysis of the matriloal/matrilineal practices among the Muslims of North Malabar with those of the other communities of the region along with similar practices among the Muslims across the state, the nation and the globe.

Course Outcome

1. To introduce foundational and advanced scholarship on Matriarchy and its variant forms like mariliny, matrilocality and matrifocality
2. To explore the matriloal/matrilineal practices among the mappila Muslim community of North Malabar through oral, print, visual and digital narratives
3. To develop an understanding about the matriloal/matrilineal practices among the mappila Muslim community of North Malabar through archival documents like government records, legal documents and historical studies
4. To explore the matriloal/matrilineal practices among the mappila Muslim community of North Malabar in relation to similar practices and traditions among Muslim and other communities across the world

Course Structure

Given below is a detailed syllabus. The course instructor will select two to three texts from each Module for detailed study in the Semester and for purposes of assessment. The remaining texts will be marked for recommended reading.

Module I: Matriarchal/ Matrilineal Studies

Matriarchy refers to the social system of kinship where women play a central role in the constitution of the family as well as the society. This module intends to familiarise the researcher with prior scholarship on Matriarchy and matriarchal societies and its various intricate forms like mariliny, matrilocality and matrifocality.

CENTRAL UNIVERSITY OF KERALA
Department of English and Comparative Literature
Syllabus: PhD (English and Comparative Literature): 2019

Assessment

The Evaluation will comprise End-Semester Assessment for 100 marks.

Course Code	LEC7103	Credits	4
Course Title	Special Course Related to the Core Area of Research	Semester	PhD (Coursework)
Student		Faculty	Dr. Shalini M

Literature has evolved throughout ages and in this 21st century, the world literatures cannot be taken as purely literary. With the advent of cultural studies and its merger with literature, it has opened up a new wide arena for learning; also literary theories had already managed to inculcate other disciplines into its platform where theory can be used as a key to open up and interpret any disciplines and concepts that are being produced day-by-day along with the intervention of technology and cultural studies.

Course Outcome

By the end of this course, the student shall be able to:

1. provide the researcher the knowledge of the contemporary and emerging trends in literary theory.
2. enable the researcher to develop critical skills to apply the theories on any texts.
3. enlighten the researcher with potential possibilities of literary theory in all disciplines.

Module I: Introduction to Literary Theory

The aim of this module is to provide a brief background understanding about contemporary literary theories to build a base in literary theory.

- Literary Theory: An Introduction by Terry Eagleton.
- A Reader's Guide to Contemporary Literary Theory by Raman Selden and Peter Widdowson.

Module II: Introduction to Fiction

The objective of this module is to present a background understanding about the history and evolution of the genre fiction, its transformation and how it managed to reflect the postmillennial trends in its contents as it embraced digitization.

- "Encyclopedia of the Novel" by Christopher Hudson.
- "Critical Analysis of Fiction: Essays in Discourse Stylistics" by Willie van Peer.

Module III: Posthumanism

This module focuses on the concept of posthumanism since literature and society are irrevocably connected Information Technology and Science. This paper also focuses on the evolution of posthumanism through ages.

- "A Cyborg Manifesto" by Donna Haraway.
- "A Critical History of Posthumanism" by Andy Miah.

Module III: Biopolitics

The aim of the module is to provide an understanding about how the bodies of individuals are subjected to and victimized by the power structures.

- "Panopticon" by Michel Foucault.
